DENVER HOUSING AUTHORITY

HOSTS

HOME OWNERSHIP FAIR

Denver, CO – Teaching first-time buyers how to purchase a home; providing current homeowners with the resources to improve their homes; and presenting options for homeowners in delinquency or foreclosure is what the Denver Housing Authority (DHA) will offer at its upcoming Home Ownership Fair.

The DHA Home Ownership Fair—which is free to the public—is scheduled for Saturday, June 13th from 10:00 a.m. – 3:00 p.m. The metro wide event will take place at the PPA Center, which is located at 2105 Decatur Street in Denver.

“As part of National Homeownership Month, this Fair is being held at a very critical time in our economy,” states Ismael Guerrero, DHA’s Executive Director. “While there is a glut of housing available on the market, many first-time buyers don’t know how to navigate their way through the maze of options. In addition, we want to provide whatever support we can to those families that are struggling to hold on to their homes and might need some professional guidance.”

Workshops will be conducted throughout the day, with Spanish and Vietnamese translators on hand. The Fair will also feature resource tables representing a number of housing, financial, government, foreclosure counselors and real estate industry organizations and companies from throughout the Denver area. Free parking, refreshments, door prizes and activities for youth will also be provided. According to Renee Nicolosi, Resident & Community Services Program Manager at DHA, “Buying a home, particularly for the first time, can sometimes be very stressful. Maintaining and keeping a home in this economic climate can also be worrisome. Our goal is to provide valuable information in a relaxing environment where the entire family benefits”.

More information on the DHA Home Ownership Fair can be obtained by calling 303-654-2526 or by logging on to <http://www.denverhousing.org>.
